PRIMARY EXAMINER

Continuation of 2. NOTE: Applicant's amendment changes the scope of the invention thus requiring further search and consideration.

Continuation of 10. Other: It was suggested to the Applicant in a previous interview to amend claims in a manner to clearly state that the proper form of the complex character sequence was displayed as the character was created and validated. Examiner suggested indicating the dynamic display capabilities by specifically stating that as each character was added to the sequence, the correct complex character was formed and displayed. Applicant's Proposed Amendments cite displaying the "at least a portion of a complex character formed by the...". The amendment cites "at least a portion" which does not overcome the prior art of record. In citing "at least a portion of a complex character", the Applicant has not acknowledged that the complex character sequence made up of the entered simple characters is displayed, but rather a "portion" is. This portion could be just the simple character alone or a complex character along with a simple character, but not the entire correct complex character sequence that is formed from all of the simple characters that have been entered by the user. Thus EXaminer does not find the proposed amendments allowable over the prior art of record.
